SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—California's state government may legally continue to do business on a credit basis, according to a ruling handed down by the state supreme court.

In a test case brought by Controller Ray L. Riley against Treasurer Charles J. Johnson, it was held that the registration of warrants was a legal procedure and that this method of issuing state IOUs was not a violation of the debt limitation in the constitution.

As a result of the decision, officials pointed out that the only limitation now placed on the issuance of the warrants would be in the amount which banks would be willing to accept.

Future of the Donihue investigation of alleged liquor graft appeared uncertain after the death of Elwood Squires, assistant secretary of the state board of equalization and key figure in many of the accusations aimed at liquor administration.

In addition, members of the board of equalization, called to Los Angeles to testify, returned to Sacramento after waiting two days without being called by the committee.

Whether they would appear before the committee at a later date was questionable.

Records of Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan revealed that 1,535,280 persons cast ballots in the state's presidential primary last May. The total represented 51.79 per cent of the registered voters.

The first official record in connection with the proposed recall of Gov. Frank F. Merriam was presented here when E. F. Pickerill, county clerk of Kings county, formally registered with the secretary of state a copy of the recall petition.

The copy bore no signatures inasmuch as it was filed merely as a method of registering the wording of the petition.

Officials said that it would be necessary to obtain the signatures of a total of 279,567 registered voters before the petition would qualify and make it necessary for Lieut. Gov. George Hatfield to call a special election and test the recall.

Joseph Kelly, superintendent of the state industrial home for the blind in Oakland, flatly denied charges that he should be removed from his position, and demanded a full hearing before the state personnel board.

The removal charges were brought by members of the California Federation of Women's clubs who complained that immoral conditions at the home were the worst of any institution in the state; that Kelly was "frequently intoxicated" and unfit to hold the position of superintendent.

Kelly denied all the charges. A hearing was set to be held in Oakland June 29.

LARGER RESERVOIR PLAN DISCUSSED

Meeting Held in Reno Monday Night Between Representatives of the Washoe District and the Sierra Pacific Power Company.

Proposals for the enlargement of the projected reservoir on the Little Truckee river were discussed Monday at a conference between representatives of the Washoe County Conservation District and the Sierra Pacific Power company. The power company has requested that the capacity be increased from 40,000 or 45,000 acre feet to approximately 75,200 in order that a better flow may be secured for power purposes.

Fears were expressed by directors of the conservation district at the meeting that a movement to increase the size of the reservoir might seriously delay the project and might jeopardize the $1,000,000 allotment which has been made for the development. They concluded that plans should be pushed for the smaller size reservoir, pending further study of the proposals for increased size, and announced that final action would be delayed until July 9.

In presenting the project to increase the size of the reservoir, George G. Devore, for the power company, proposed that either the Washoe district of the Fallon district contract with the reclamation service for the increased capacity which it is estimated would cost $300,000 to $400,000. The power company, on its part, would then agree to reimburse whichever district assumed the obligation for the annual payments to the federal government. In the event that neither district would assume the contract for the additional storage, the power company proposed that it be permitted to increase the capacity 7,000 to 10,000 acre feet at an estimated cost of $100,000 which would be paid directly by the company and not through one of the districts. By having one of the districts contract with the government, it is anticipated that the additional money could be secured without any interest charge for the greater storage.

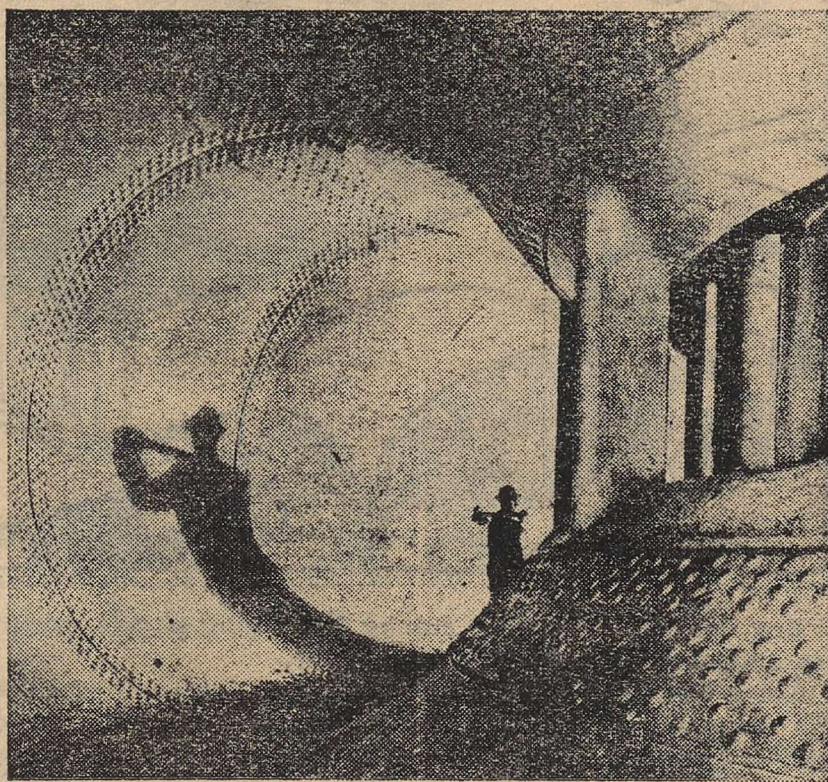

In its proposal that the Washoe district contract with the government for the increased storage, the power company proposed that use of the additional water be divided between the district and the power company. The power company's portion would be used to maintain adequate flows in the river during the winter months for power purposes. The portion allotted to the district, under the company's proposal, would be subject to release at the call of the district in years of deficient water supply during the months of July, August and September at restricted flows. In connection with this part of the proposal, the suggestion was made that the half of the additional storage allotted to the Washoe district should be made subject to release without restrictions as the needs of the district determined.

In the event that the Washoe district should decide to contract with the federal government for the additional storage, it is stated that another election would be necessary, to authorize the contract.

The power company's representative stated that if the district decides to not assume the contract with the government for the increased storage, the Fallon district might do so. In that event another election would be necessary in the Fallon district. The consent of this district would also be necessary to enlargement of the reservoir by the Fallon district, but such consent could be given by the directors, it is stated, under the supplemental agreement which will be circulated among landowners within a few days.

Under this supplemental agreement the directors will be authorized to consent to an increase in the size of the proposed reservoir. The supplemental agreement will be circulated along with the Truckee

In the Scroll Case at Norris Dam

This scroll case at the Norris dam in Tennessee forms the lower end of the penstock or tube which conducts water from Norris lake to the turbines of the power plant. The swirling water will pass through the wicket gates or valves to the right of the workman, and thus into the turbines. There are two of these scrolls at the Norris dam, one for each generator.

river agreement. Copies of the agreements are still being prepared and it is stated will be ready for signatures within a few days.

Pending final action on the enlargement proposals by the local district it is understood that the plans for increased capacity of the reservoir will be laid before the Fallon district for study.

SENATOR SEAWELL AIDS ROAD PROGRAM

The efforts of Senator Seawell to improve the state road program in his district since he became a representative of this district in 1931 will no doubt be of interest to the people of this region.

He has worked untiringly in behalf of better roads and highways and in a brief summary gives the state work that has been done on highways in his district.

In Nevada county the state has constructed part of and maintained all of the 137 miles of state highways in the county. The total cost of construction and maintenance amounts to $1,579,227. In addition to this amount the state will spend $355,990 in new construction this year and has allocated to the incorporated cities of Nevada county from the gas tax the sum of $22,540 for street improvement, making a total of $1,957,757 received by Nevada county for highways and city streets.

Senator Seawell states that the state has expended in his district, which comprises the counties of Placer, Nevada and Sierra, since 1931 in highway construction, maintenance and city improvements the sum of $5,450,461. He believes that the record will compare favorably with monies expended in other districts of like population, and that this district's highways are of equal quality as compared to highways of other districts of a like nature.

Proposed work in Nevada county to be completed or contracted for this year is as follows:

Road 111-Yub. Nev.-15-B. A., Park-bar bridge to 1 mile east of county line, grade and surface, 3.8 miles, $150,000, Ukiah-Tahoe lateral.

Road 111-Nev. Sic-38-B. A., Floriston to state line, grade and surface, 5 miles, $50,000, Truckee Reno road.

Road 111-Nev.-37-B. C., Fox Farm to Summit station, grade and pave, 3.8 miles, $145,000, Auburn Truckee road.

Minor improvements will be as follows:

Road 111-Nev.-15-A, over Oak creek reconstruct bridge, $990.

Road 111-Nev.-15-B, between Rough and Ready and Grass valley, line change, $5,000.

Road 111-Nev.-15-D, Harmony ridge to Bear valley, widen roadway, $5,000.

By July 1 approval will be made of work on the highway from the foot of Donner grade to junction of Route 39, grade and surface, 4.7 miles.

BENTON FREMONT IS CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS

Benton Fremont of Tuolumne county, has announced that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination as a Member of Congress from the Second District of California.

This office has been held by Harry L. Englebright, republican, for the past ten years, and who is seeking re-election. Englebright has filed for both the Republican and Democratic nominations.

Romantic California history is revived in this announcement by Benton Fremont, grandson of General John Charles Fremont. Behind this announcement lies much more than the usual political aspiration. Service to California has been a trust in the Fremont family since General Fremont first led his ragged, half starved band of adventurers over the wilderness trails and brought Spanish territory into the United States Union. Back of this historic venture lay also the fanatical faith in California of another great American—Senator Benton of Missouri whose 30 years service in Washington still serves as a guide for Senatorial practice. Benton risked his fortune, as Fremont risked his life, that California might become a part of America. Their descendant has carried on the tradition they set.

Mr. Benton Fremont is a construction engineer by profession, but in all his commercial work there has been a lifelong training for the office to which he now aspires. During the War he handled munitions contracts in Washington, thus laying the foundation for the strong friendships he now enjoys with national leaders. As a final preparation for a Congressional seat, he has ranched for the last six years in Sonora, Tuolumne County, familiarizing himself with the Second District's particular problems, giving generously of his private funds and political influence to help his neighbors.

When not in Sonora, Mr. Fremont spends his time in Washington and also keeps in further touch with California affairs through his San Francisco residence where his young son, John Charles Fremont the Fourth, is being educated for part of the year.

The home which Mr. and Mrs. Fremont have built eight miles outside Sonora is famous for its beauty and hospitality a typical California home of the "good old days."

AS OTHERS SEE LANDON

If Gov. Alfred M. Landon is all that California editors say of him he is either an outstanding executive, practical-minded, vigorous, liberal, courageous with inspiring personality, or a relative obscure political opportunist.

Which leads to a suspicion the editors may be viewing the Republican presidential nominee through partisan eyes.

"The Republican National Convention has completed its work," said the Turlock Daily Journal, "and it has done a job of which it can well be proud. Alfred M. Landon, the choice of election to the Presidency has met with the unanimous approval of the delegates from all portions of the nation. Landon was not born in the lap of luxury, he was not reared in the environment of Wall Street and Tammany Hall; he worked his way up from the ranks and knows the problems of the farmer and laborer from personal experience."

On the contrary, the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News believes "the nomination of Landon, cut-and-dried, is nothing more than a make-shift. The qualities he displayed in winning the governorship of Kansas are not the essentials of national leadership or statesmanship. An irreconcilable dry, he carried the driest state in the Union when the nation overwhelmingly voted the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. With the millions he made in oil, he had ample funds to build up a state machine, but he never was even faintly liberal. The very fact that he was acceptable from the beginning to the Mellons and Rockefellers and Duponts shows how far from the plain people his interests and sympathies lie."

"Before entering politics," states the Willows Journal, "the Governor had been a banker, then embarked in the oil business and made a fortune. As governor of Kansas his claim to fame lies in the fact that he balanced the budget after the national government had dumped one hundred millions into the state to save it from bankruptcy. * * * He was strong for the New Deal before the Presidential bug bit him. He is a poor speaker and lacks experience in national affairs. He has the small town politician outlook and can be compared in this respect to the late President Warren G. Harding. * * * It takes more than just being a popular politician to conduct our country in the present state of affairs."

COUNT THE COSTS

Projects come and projects go, these days with a rapidity that leaves us a bit bewildered as to which is for what purpose and why. But this week California is starting one unquestionably all to the good.

The most complete survey of our highway system ever undertaken is now getting under way. Armed with $300,000, mostly Federal money, the State Division of Highways is sending out more than 200 statisticians, engineers and other workers to map every road in California, study needs for new ones, analyze the flow of traffic, and find out what's what generally.

Thus far they've announced only one study bearing directly on costs and who pays them. That will deal with the amount of traffic originating in various districts, compared with the funds those districts contribute to the total bill for highways.

Costs, it seems, ought really to be the most important part of the survey. After all, the ideal we're working for in highway financing, is to have not only each district, but each vehicle, each type of vehicle, pay its share.

One expert, impressed with the fact that tax-burdened motorists seemed to be doing most of the paying, and commercial vehicles most of the wearing out, summed up our aim rather academically in a two-point program, thus:

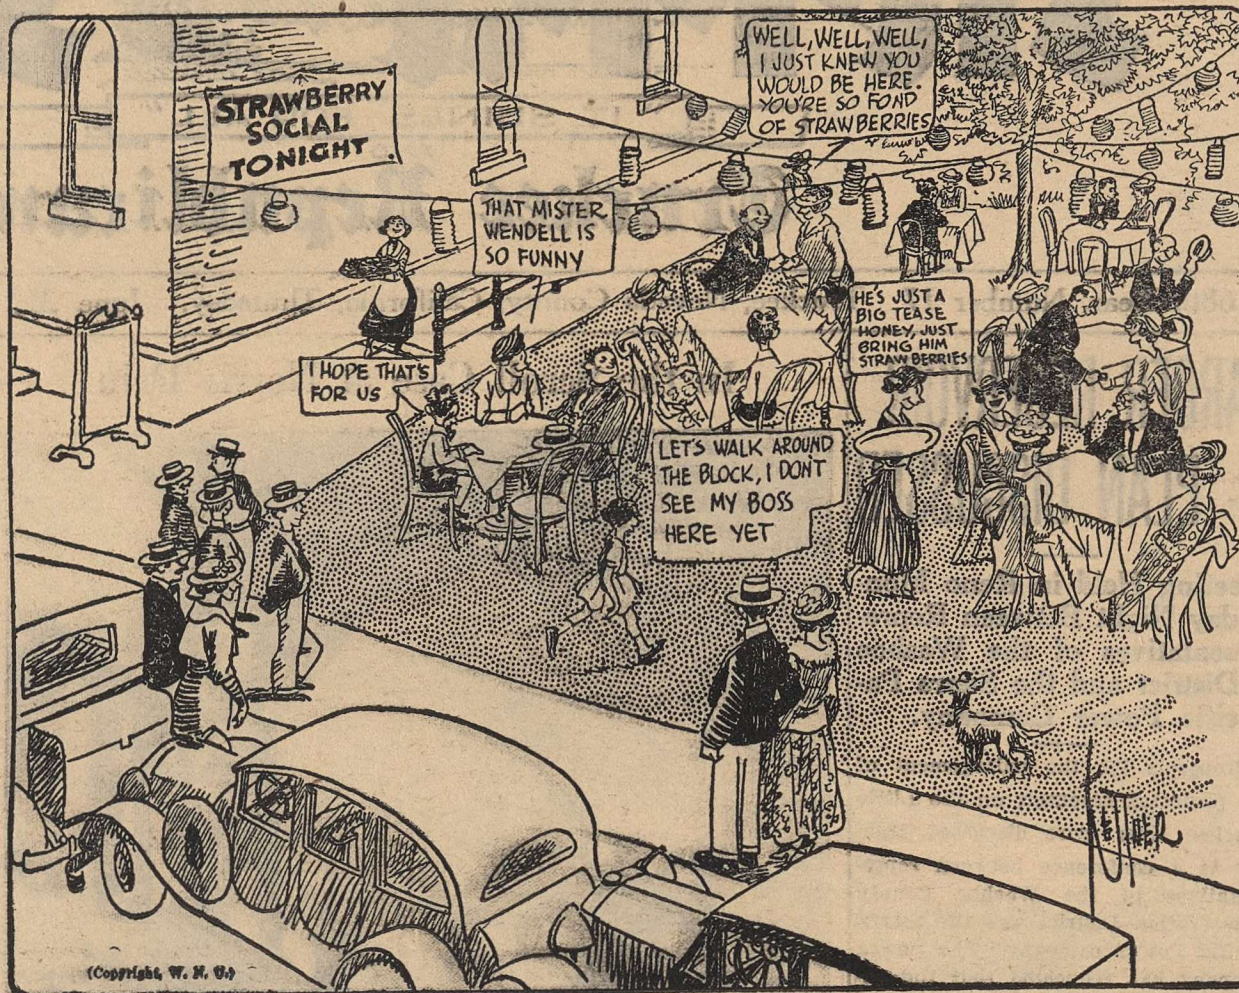

"Determine adequate standards for the present highway system; establishing those standards so that there would be a proper allocation of facilities according to the vehicles that require them.

"Establish and enforce a system of contributions for highway use which would allocate such contributions among vehicles according to the use that they make of the facilities they require."

AMERICAN YOUTH

There is quite a little talk of a "youth movement" in this country, especially among high school and college students. Inquiry, however, seems to make it doubtful whether there is any definite movement among the young people except the almost universal effort to get jobs.

Much has been said of the "lost generation" arising since the war, and especially since the depression. It was from such a generation that the rowdy legions in Europe were recruited. Is there anything in America comparable to it?

Those European youngsters knew they were lost. They were jobless, ignorant and hopeless. Naturally they were easy prey for ambitious and unscrupulous or crack-brained leaders. They fell easily into violent schemes for revolution, which may leave them more hopelessly lost than ever.

Our own "youth" movements, such as they are, propose no revolution, whether of the right or the left. Our young people's political and economic thinking seems pretty much like that of their parents. Publicly and privately, more and more rapidly, they are now getting a start. Before long they will be running the country, and running it, in all probability, according to American ideals of progress, practicability and fair play.

THROUGH THE MARBLE GATE

The sun was well up as our bearers swung the long chair poles upon their sturdy shoulders, and we started down into the Nankow Pass. For a few hours they would carry us over the paths which millions of Mongolians must have followed in the past.

We had found very little of this Pass to read about—this mighty winding cut between the lofty hills, where romance hovers in the very atmosphere. But turning our thoughts backward on receding centuries, we realized that it must have been a great strategic point—the only open pathway from Mongolia through the mountains to the south of vast Cathay.

And just ahead of us we saw the same long camel train which had passed through the Wall the day before. Their drivers, tanned and sturdy, sometimes slept, relaxed, upon a sheepskin thrown between their bending, flapping humps or slowly walking along to keep them in line.

We reached the famous Marble Gate, a superb archway, octagonal in shape, in a small likin (carts) village on the way. Imposingly, from out the squalor of the usual gathering of Chinese homes, it rears its gorgeously carved sides, a lasting relic of more prosperous trading days. . . .

Beyond the Marble Gate, the rugged mountains shut us in, forbidding and severe. And still the Wall swept over them, ruthless, persistent and austere. We never ceased to marvel, as for hours we went on and watched it disappearing and appearing; slipping towards us in a slender winding line, holding tenaciously its stark, grim watch towers on the tops of lofty crests.

Then following a lonely stream, with willows drooping over it, where unexpectedly we came upon small sheltered farms, and stopping by some boulders underneath the shade, we ate our lunch. A solitude profound and restful seemed to hold the very secrets of the past, shut close within these mountain heights; nor was it willing to unfold in any way the riddle of the country's future, or its present state of chaos and unrest!—Elizabeth Crump Enders, in "Temple Bells and Silver Sails."

Politically Speaking

By GEORGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—

The death of Elwood Squires, assistant secretary of the state board of equalization and key witness in the statewide investigation of the liquor scandal, left unanswered many of the most significant insinuations and charges that have been aired since the start of inquiries in Oakland, Sacramento and Los Angeles.

It prevented him from answering, officially, the accusations that he served as a puppet for Mrs. Helen Werner, so-called queen of Los Angeles politicians, in the handling of liquor licenses and distribution of patronage in the south last January; that he accepted money from her; that he demanded money from Michael Connolly, former liquor administrator in Los Angeles and later in Oakland; that he was instrumental in placing a wine classification upon alcoholic cocktails; that he generally had a hand in many of the reputed irregularities involved in liquor control work.

Squires made informal denials of most of the accusations, replied with a formal denial, to charges filed with the state personnel board. He tossed restlessly in his hospital bed as he read of new accusations and of insinuations which made him and his friends believe he was being made the fall guy and forced to accept the blame for situations over which he had little control.

In ill-health for 10 years or more, and in particularly bad condition during the past several months, he was unable, physically, to stand the strain of what his friends termed persecution.

Many of the accusations had no answer in the records. Squires alone could have explained the complexities of situations which have puzzled investigators. He knew a great deal about the liquor setup in Los Angeles which might have aided authorities in getting to the bottom of corruption charges, and was anxious to face the Donihue committee, exonerate himself and tell what he knew of the situation.

Those who knew him intimately realized that he was connected closely with the administration of liquor laws because he carried out the orders of the board and, as assistant secretary, handled unpleasant assignments, made enemies and took the blame that otherwise might have fallen on his superiors.

Six months ago, a former board employee who was ousted because of reputedly gaff information obtained by Squires boasted openly that he would "get Squires if it's the last thing I ever do." The former employee since has been a witness in the current investigations.

More recently, the ex-employee was quoted in the capitol as having threatened to "blow the lid off" if he was not reinstated in his old job.

When Squires was taken to a hospital 10 days before his death, the report was circulated that he merely was riding behind a friendly physician in order to escape the ordeal of being questioned by investigators.

Assemblyman Leon M. Donihue, indicating a belief along that line, demanded an affidavit from Squires' physician and said that if the explanation was not satisfactory he would force Squires to attend the meeting, or send the committee to the hospital bedside.

Several days later, Squires died.

A frequent expression in the capitol:

"It looks like he had to die to convince the skeptics that he really was sick."

His illness was of such serious nature that he was unable to prepare a statement answering accusations and explaining many of the points the assembly investigating committee wished to know.

Most of the insinuations and charges were known to Donihue before the formal investigation was started, but no attempt was made to obtain information from Squires—considered one of the best sources of information connected with the board—until it was too late.

The attitude assumed by some of those directing the inquiry was that Squires was guilty of everything as charged and should be questioned only in due time, as a defendant is questioned during a trial. In reply to inquiries as to whether the board would suspend the assistant secretary, shortly after the scandal developed, Chairman Richard E. Collins said:

"For what? Because of heresy evidence none of which has been proven to be fact? I should say not! So far as I know, Elwood is innocent, and I'll stick with him until it's proven otherwise."

Merriam Does Not Eat Fancy Banquet Food

SACRAMENTO, June 18 —(UP)— Governor Frank F. Merriam has solved the problem of how to keep physically fit, despite the demands of countless banquets.

"What do you do about all this fancy banquet food," the governor was asked.

"That's easy," he snapped. "I just don't eat it." He then explained that the practice had to be followed "discreetly."

The governor said he had developed a fine faculty of sleeping in his car while traveling from place to place as a means of getting sufficient rest.

APPLICANT MAKES UNUSUAL REQUEST

SACRAMENTO June 18 —(UP)— Listed as the most peculiar personnel request ever received by the board of equalization was a letter addressed to Dixwell Pierce, secretary, by a man who sought to obtain a position as auditor.

The applicant asked that the written examination be waived in his case; that he be permitted to undergo only an oral test of his abilities.

In all state civil service examinations, applicants must pass a written test before being called for oral interviews and final classification.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swane

The fourth regional conference of National Business and Professional Women's clubs opened at the Tahoe Tavern on June 22 and continued through until June 24.

Harry Comstock, president of the Tahoe-Sierra association, welcomed the delegates to the conference, who represented seven western states, California, Nevada, Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Utah and Montana and numbered 288.

On Sunday night an informal reception and high jinks were staged by the Nevada delegation.

Monday morning the business sessions started, continuing intermittently during the three days.

Miss Charl O. Williams, national federation president of Washington, D. C. was one of the principal speakers and stated that women must face present-day problems in the same manner as men if they are to survive and succeed. Other speakers were Miss Lucy Higgins, president of the Idaho Business and Professional Women's federation, who charmed with her ready wit and her worthy contributions to the open forums and conferences; Mrs. Anne Leidendeker, first vice president of the California federation and librarian of the Los Angeles libraries, in the division of scientific research. Her addresses were highly enlightening and entertaining, and she spoke on women's climb to recognition in the business world.

Mrs. Helen Weber, president of the California group, presided at the business session which opened on Tuesday morning. Mrs. Pearl E. Bontius of Washington led in the discussion of "Women in Public Office." Mrs. Cora Stevens, county treasurer of Twin Falls, Idaho, outlined her experiences in the political field and in the office which she has held three terms and was reelected to again.

The long table was laid in the main dining room where a view of the fountain and outdoor fireplace in the patio were visible through the long windows. Long tapers of apricot shade blended with the bowl of gladiolas of the same color and with the red and white carnations. Dinner was served between dances.

An asserted "hot car thief" was taken on or about June 17 at Brockway by Officer Karl Kitts of the Nevada highway patrol. The man was wanted for having stolen a new car from the Pacific-Nash showrooms in Oakland while apparently taking a solo demonstration. The man, who boasted three other aliases, at first denied all connection with the charges, but later made a complete confession when the car in question was located.

Mrs. A. W. Jost of Sacramento is again operating the Homewood hotel this year, which is already enjoying an early run of trade.

"The kingdom of heaven is like unto leaven, which a woman took, and hid in three measures of meal, till the whole was leavened." These words from Matthew comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, June 28, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Christian Science." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "And seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: And he opened his mouth, and taught them saying, Blessed are the poor in spirit: for their's is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are the meek: for they shall inherit the earth. Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." (Matt. 5:1-3, 5, 6).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Christian Science may absorb the attention of sage and philosopher, but the Christian alone can fathom it. It is made known most fully to him who understands best the divine Life" (p. 556).

County and State Ice Cream Production Gains

SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—California produced enough ice cream in 1935 to give every person an average of two gallons for the year.

A report of the state dairy service revealed that the state's production of the summer delicacy amounted to 12,665,170 gallons for the year, a substantial increase over the 11,167,823 gallons manufactured during 1934.

In Nevada county the 1935 output amounted to 13,505 gallons as compared with 10,145 gallons the previous year, the service reported.

The increase in the ice cream output was attributed directly to a steadily growing demand which also characterized other dairy products such as market milk, market cream, ice milk and cottage cheese.

The wholesale value of the ice cream production was estimated at $11,905,259.

Los Angeles county was far ahead in the production of ice cream with a total of 5,775,334 gallons, or almost half of the total amount produced in the state, according to the division report.

Alameda county was second with 1,509,831 gallons, and San Francisco third with 1,170,000 gallons.

The report revealed that there are seven counties in which no ice cream was manufactured, during the year, including Alpine, Calaveras, Inyo, Mariposa, Mono, Sierra and Trinity. The previous year nine counties were included in this list, but since that time factories have started operation in Del Norte and San Benito counties.

The increase in the popularity of ice cream was held by state officials

Lindbergh Estate to Be State Park

On the ninth anniversary of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's non-stop flight to Paris, WPA announced its final plan for the project to make the Lindbergh estate at Little Falls, Minn., a state park at an expenditure of $23,777. The residence is shown above.

Newcomers Commit Half Of State's Major Crimes

SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—Nearly half the major crimes in California have been committed by men who were comparative newcomers to the state.

Forty per cent of the convicts in San Quentin prison had lived in the state less than five years before they were sent to the "big house." Thirty per cent boasted residence of three years or less. More than six per cent were taken to prison before they had been in California three months.

These statistics were the result of a survey conducted at San Quentin to determine the length of California residence preceding incarceration and whether any significance could be attached to the disclosures.

They showed that it was not unusual for a potential criminal to break the law soon after his arrival in the state. If he managed to slip through the first three months without arrest, then he stood a good chance of maintaining his freedom for a year. After that, his chances for receiving a prison term increased.

Nearly 10 per cent of the prisoners were sent to San Quentin before they had lived in California two years.

Advocates of transient control at the borders pointed to the statistics as proof that an important percentage of the crimes committed in the state could be traced to newcomers, to drifters who came to California in search of easy money and either started or continued a career of crime in a new setting.

Approximately 60 per cent of the criminals, however, lived in the state five years or more before going to prison.

Stock Raisers To Have Average Season

SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—California stock raisers face a "better than average" year, although conditions are not as favorable as they were last season, the federal state crop service reported.

The condition of pasture and range land was listed at 85 as compared with a 10-year average of 79.

"Native pasture growth has matured in areas of lower and intermediate elevations, leaving a good cover of dry feed in most districts. This, along with a large acreage of stubble and other field feeds assures adequate pasturage for stockmen through the summer and fall months," the report said.

The condition of cattle and calves was reported at 86, or two points below the 10-year average, while sheep and lambs were said to be "generally satisfactory" with a rate one point above the 10-year average of 91.

The service predicted in its June report that there would be a substantial increase in the California livestock output this year.

During the first four months of the year, over the 1929-35 period an average of 256,000 head of cattle and 138,000 calves were slaughtered under inspection. For the same period this year, the totals were 233,000 and 155,000.

The slaughter of sheep and lambs averaged 708,000 for the four-month period up to 1935, but this year increased 774,000, it was revealed.

Central Valleys Project Work Advancing Rapidly

SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—Preliminary work on the huge Central Valleys project advanced rapidly during May, Walker R. Young, chief engineer, disclosed in a report on file here.

Activities of the field parties during the month include: Final location surveys completed on 16 1/4 miles of the Friant-Kern canal; 9 1/2 miles of the Contra Costa conduit.

Rights of way appraisers also filed sixteen reports with the consulting appraisal board during May. Included in the land appraised were 727 acres at Friant reservoir site; 735 acres at Kennett reservoir site, and rights of way for two miles of the Friant-Kern canal and 5 1/2 miles for relocation of Southern Pacific railroad tracks.

PWA Projects Aid Many School Districts

SACRAMENTO June 25 —(UP)—Accommodations for more than 110,000 additional students have been added to California's school facilities through PWA projects, State Director A. D. Wilder of the PWA reported.

Wilder said the PWA program in California included 474 new school buildings and 503 others have been rehabilitated. A summary of school construction showed:

Approximately 1500 new class rooms providing for 62,890 elementary pupils; 1,000 new class rooms for 44,360 high school students, and 71 new class rooms with a capacity of 2,743 students in buildings where both elementary and high school grades are taught.

Terms of the agreement provide for elimination of unfair trade practices, including sales below cost. Definite standards to govern commercial grades also would be set up and provision made for establishment of an industry board to aid in administration of the agreement. The proposed board would comprise nine growers, nominated by the industry and appointed by the director.

Old Bridge Bell Now Used As Mess Signal

GERBER, Cal., June 25—(UP)—An old bell which in early days on the Sacramento river signalled river boat captains when the railroad bridge at Tehama was lifted has been removed from its historic post and will be used henceforth as a dinner bell in a construction camp. The bell, mounted in a town on an old railroad drawbridge, was used by the bridge tender for 25 years or more.

A construction crew foreman who saw the bell and learned it no longer served a purpose, obtained permission to remove it. From where the foreman stood it appeared that the bell was about the size of one on a locomotive, and could be carried down out of the tower by one man. Actually, cables and the services of several men were required to lower it. The bell is three feet high and it took four men to lift it.

The bell will be installed on a outfit car for a Chinese cook's use in sounding the mess call for a construction crew.

Fashion Show To Be State Fair Feature

SACRAMENTO, Calif., June 25—(UP)—A fashion show three times daily will be one of the new features of the California state fair this year.

The show will be staged by members of high school clothing projects, and early entries indicated that practically every section of the state would be represented, according to Horace E. Thomas, Marysville newspaper publisher and fair director.

Thomas, who is chairman of the vocational, junior and art division, said that skits, lectures and exhibits would demonstrate 27 points on how best to make and wear clothing.

The care of clothing, how to balance a wardrobe, selection of materials and a study of social customs will be among the highlights of the demonstration.

"A Day With the Correctly and Indirectly Co-ed" is the title of a skit planned by Santa Rosa students.
